

I suggest it is in everyone's best interests to recognize and scarify marking places where interventions can be found and acted upon.

22

rise the importance of seams be made, or where potential state of relative equilibrium. Made up of earth, fire, water, and air, we were an element among the rest—an element in fusion. Today, the sense of selfhood is transformed by the recognition that the very substance of the self is interconnected not only with biological but also with economic and industrial systems. Oxygen tanks are attached to both space suits and wet suits.

The space of outer space is the opposite of the space of the architect, because it is a space that humans cannot actually encounter without dying, and so must enter exclusively through a dependence on technology.

The crushed cabin of the spaceship, like some bizarre vehicle modified for an extreme cripple, is the perfect module for all the quickening futures of our lives. One giant, luxurious spaceship. Eventually the spaceship will become a sarcophagus, and the containment of the body will be brought to its logical conclusion.

The text expands upon some of the thoughts presented in the video essay You Moved (2014), written together with Elvia Wilk and featured in excerpts along the way.

REFERENCES

- 1 Gregory Whitehead, "Body Fluids (and other mobile homes)," Oasis, Semiotext(e), 1984.
- 2 Peter Sloterdijk, Terror from the Air, Semiotext(e), 2009.
- 3 Bruno Latour, "On Technical Mediation," Common Knowledge Vol.3, Oxford University Press, 1994.
- 4 Adrian Mackenzie, Transductions: Bodies and Machines at Speed, Continuum, 2006.
- 5 Beatriz Preciado, Don't Trust Architects Don't Trust Yourself—Architecture in the pharmacopornographic regime, 2012.
- 6 Ibid. Sloterdijk, 2009.

Server Closet

Rasmus Svensson

As soon as possible. Aiming for Finland, The Netherlands, or Australia. / Only idiots stay in Sweden / I will definitely get out. The question is which countries can offer a good future. / What do you think: Denmark? Finland? Switzerland? Poland? Hungary? Malta? Australia? / Are there any other countries except Norway that have a chance of managing future pension payments? / I'll wait and see how Sweden looks in 2020. I want to see the results of the elections in 2014 and 2018. If it gets worse I'll move to another country and learn to live according to their laws and culture. / Åland, Norway, Finland, or Denmark (in order of preference). Sweden is fucked up. I'll move as soon as both my parents are dead and I have nothing to keep me here. / Is it not hypocrisy to look down on immigrants but want to leave the country? Most people who come here have escaped infinitely worse situations. / What's your point? That you become an immigrant if you emigrate? So? / LOL, yeah why don't you move to a country that doesn't accept any immigrants. / There is a difference between immigrants and immigrants. Immigrant is a word that includes everyone who emigrates for different reasons to all kinds of countries, some are failures who can't contribute to society, break the law etc. But that is equally true for Swedes who emigrate and for Somalis coming to Sweden. / I would be the immigrant who I wish the immigrants coming to Sweden were. / But the welfare you talk of is financed by taxes, which is what you want to avoid. You didn't want that kind of welfare to be wasted on immigrants, so you shouldn't get it when you are an immigrant either, right? / You seem to confuse a paper-citizen with a real citizen. The Swede will always be white, no matter how many citizenship-papers you marxists throw around. / I don't want to get to know people who have completely different values and points of views than me. And neither do you. / I am moving to Turkey because I'm fed up with this fucking country. / Social refugee are despised on this forum as they don't flee famine or war but only social difficulties... / My country doesn't need saving, you fucking idiot. I am a descendant of workforce immigration you ignorant asshole. We came to work, nothing else, and have served Sweden well. I am in Sweden because my parents saw a country of opportunities where you could make riches out of ashes (as we did). / No, Iranians do not have a right to come here, but perhaps you think that the whole world is welcome? Why not all of Africa as well, where people are starving, and Bangladesh, Afghanistan, parts of India? In Europe we have free movement and therefore we have the right to relocate. Many developed countries are happy to welcome people like me with competence in my field and a good education, but why would they welcome somebody who can not even read? What is in it for them? / If you move to a country and live of your own assets you can do exactly what you want. If Hassan from Arabia buys a flat in Stockholm and lives off his wealth, he can choose himself if he wants to learn Swedish or eat Swedish food. And if Hassan also gets a private health insurance, like many immigrant Swedes do, he will be a net gain for the country. / One way of hastening the collapse is to move out, thereby shrinking the tax base that keeps the system alive. Another way to increase the pressure on the system is to work on the black market or quit your job and go on welfare. The latter is a big personal sacrifice as it will ruin your career. / Is anybody asking the 12 year-old who was moved here because his/her parents were killed by Swedish land mines? No. / BTW, I am Swedish and don't know any Turkish people. / Leaving soon. Can't stand this shithole. / When my daughters have finished high school and are on the right track in Life. Then I leave for southeast Asia. Live there in the winter. In the summer in a cottage. A hut without electricity. Will be nice. / Abroad there are many things that Swedes don't like. Heat, beggars, sick dogs in the streets, foreigners, annoying cops, military who go around on trucks and point guns at people, jokers and gypsies who want to play cards or tell your fortune, people without legs who don't have wheelchairs and roll round on skateboards, dirty water, no water, etc. / But at the moment, when a country lets you in it has lost its protective shell and is thus running the same risk of decadence that Sweden does. We'll have to hope that this country expels immigrants for the smallest reason, so that you and your family are deported back to Sweden as soon as you get caught for speeding or your kids get caught shoplifting in the new country. / There is AC everywhere and on a physical level the body adapts after a couple of months and it becomes easier to handle the heat. / I am not racist either, but I have the same thoughts as you. I will see how the elections in -14 and -18 play out. Then I will probably become an immigrant in some other country too. / OP, as your views are so un-Swedish it is better if you just leave. / Typical Swedish way of thinking. No spine, a little pathetic rat who is afraid of conflicts and afraid to fight for his country. As an immigrant I am embarrassed for you and hope that you don't reproduce (for the sake of Sweden of course). / The mistake you immigrants make is to think that Swedes give a fuck about Sweden. We don't. Most of us hate this cold communist country where you pay 70% of your income in taxes and would love to be able emigrate to a better country like the USA. / Switzerland has a good climate, right? Thinking of Switzerland more and more, seems to be a reasonable country. / This just strengthens my opinion that the people who ran off to the USA in the 19th century were the genetic refuse of Sweden, too scared and too weak to change anything. Unfortunately everyone seems to think the opposite: you are brave if you get on a boat for five weeks and build a shed on the plains of Oklahoma. / Hanging around the Swedish church although they aren't Christian, always shopping at IKEA, etc. You would know this if you'd lived abroad for any period of time. / Do you think OP [original poster] seems manly and strong? Or do you think he seems to be a coward, like a beaten woman who is too afraid to report her abuser? /

23

Places that are tempting right now are Finland, Switzerland, New Zealand, and Norway. Argentina is also interesting if it becomes more economically stable and the standard of living goes up. / I am a bit OT [off topic] but as a response to OP; I am born in Sweden but have no "homeland." I am not Kurdish, another minority that is imprisoned and executed in Iran/Pakistan. So if I don't have a "homeland" but was born in Sweden (love Sweden, have no problem getting a job, have education and run a startup), where am I supposed to go if I leave Sweden? Wherever I go I am not "at home." In Sweden I am considered a foreigner and if I go to the place my parents come from there is a big risk of being thrown in jail. / They were grateful, respectful, good workers. / I am opposed to national borders and want human rights to be valued higher than profit. / You are a parasite. You buy into a borderless, rootless worldview and don't give a fuck what happens to your people, nation, and culture. / LOL idiots. / HAHA you are so funny, closet racists. Sitting in your comfy chairs talking shit behind a screen. Yeah we can all do that. /

Translated and edited from Swedish by Rasmus Svensson. From the thread "When will you leave Sweden?" <http://www.flashback.org/t2163881>

Words by Blondins, deadset, falafel111, ArchJew, FatCharlie, MrWalros, GeorgVonRosen, Krigsris, powermonger, RagnarLodbrok, GoMute, OutOfIdeas, JBugster, Alex-SWE, Mockspock, MaxentiusDecius, El Capitano, Ghandi_II, PG-k, lppskiff, imperatrix, AbrahamLincoln, pikespeak11, Robur, xertion, LondonGrad, messier11